MONDAY, MAY 28, 1855.

☞ We publish this morning the rejoinder of "Silex" to our brief comments upon his first communication. It will be seen that he urges with characteristic ability that the Missouri compromise was neither legally nor morally a compact, and, that the North enjoyed her fair share of the advantages of the compromise while it endured. His remarks under this last head are confessedly founded upon the conviction that our "whole article" suggested the impression "that the South received all the advantages contemplated by the compromise, and the North none," a conviction which we think wholly unwarranted by the terms of our article, and which we certainly did not intend to produce in the mind of any one. What we intended to express was simply that when the Representatives of the South united actively in the repeal of the Missouri compromise the South had exhausted or nearly exhausted its supposed advantages to herself, and that the North was then about to enter most largely into their enjoyment. And this our able friend will no doubt cheerfully admit. The South had secured Missouri and Arkansas; and the North, having secured Iowa, was about to secure Nebraska, Kansas, and Minnesota in like manner—excepting in the two latter cases the portions that lie south of the compromise line and east of the Mississippi respectively. So far from having any disposition to dwell invidiously upon this incontrovertible fact, we are by no means confident, indeed we can hardly believe, that it exercised a paramount and controlling influence even with those Southern Represeutatives who participated in the repeal of the Missouri compromise. Assuredly it inspired nothing but indifference or repugnance to that scheme in the bosoms of the Southern people. But its coincidence with the measure of repeal was altogether too striking to escape the wakeful suspicion of the North, and, under the circumstances, we think should be regretted by the South as at least extremely ambiguous and unfortunate. With this explanation, we cordially commend our correspondent's historical review to the attention of our readers.

With regard to the legal character and binding force of the Missouri compromise, we have now but a word to say. "Silex" is certainly correct in denying to that measure the legal qualities of a compact; and his remarks, addressed mainly to this point, are just and unanswerable. But, so far as we are aware, unless perhaps in the loose parlance of the street, the Missouri compromise has never been esteemed or styled a compact in any other than a moral sense; and in that sense we think it richly deserved all the respect it ever received and more. Upon this point our ingenious correspondent in not conclusive. He says: "The Missouri compromise was established by a law which its opponents knew they could repeal whenever they could obtain a majority in Congress. Until repealed, it was submitted to by the South." Our friend, candid and impartial as is his nature, here allows himself, we fear, to think and speak as an ultra adversary of the compromise, with the passions and prejudices of the past blazing brightly in his bosom. We know his intense and chivalric devotion to the interests of the South, and we feel that it is small discredit to his fine judgment that it should occasionally yield to a passionate identification with the sympathies and resentments of that section. Whether it has done so in the present instance or not, we respectfully submit to his reflection the opinion of a Southern man, expressed at the period of the enactment of the Missouri compromise, and invested with something of the spirit which then pervad d the majorities of the representatives from both sections of the nation and the masses of the whole country. We quote from Niles's Rigister of March 11, 1820, with the simple remark that the Register was by far the ablest and deservedly the most influential paper published in any slaveholding State:

The territory north of 36 deg. 30 min. is "forever" forbidden to be peopled with slaves, except in the State of Missouri. The right, then, to inhibit slavery in any of the Territories is clearly and completely acknowledged, and it is conditioned as to some of them, that, even when they become States, slavery shall be "forever" prohibited in them. There is no hardship in this. The Territories belong to the United States, and the government may rightly prescribe the terms on which it will dispose of the public lands. This great point was agreed to in the Senate, 33 votes to 11; and in the House of Representatives by 134 to 42, or nearly 139 to 37. And we trust that it is determined "forever" in respect to the countries now subject to the legislation of the General Government. It is true that the compromise is only supported by the letter of the law, repealable by the authority which enacted it; but the circumstances of the case give to this law a moral force equal to that of a positive provision of the constitution; and we do not hazard anything by saying that the constitution exists in its observance. Both parties have sacrificed much to conciliation. We wish to see the compact kept in good faith, &c.

We have been wont to regard this as the spirit in which the Missouri Compromise was actually conceived and established, and faithfully observed for more than thirty years, and, despite the skillful and powerful assault of our correspondent, we must so regard it still.

It is very true, as our correspondent says, that when a law of Congress is passed, whether it establishes a compromise or not, those who pass it and all others know that it may be repealed whenever a majority can be obtained against it, but it is also true that a law, establishing through an important compromise the pacification of the country and understood to have been adopted from mutual concession for the salvation of the Union, should not be repealed except for reasons amounting to something like an evident necessity. The very term "compromise," by which the law of 1820 was universally recognized and called at the time, and by which it has been known for between thirty and forty years and is known still, implies a moral sanctity that should not be lightly disregarded. Another compromise of surpassing importance was adopted in 1850, and, although the Senators and Representatives knew, and although the whole people of the United States knew, that each and all of the laws comprised in it might, like any other laws, be constitutionally repealed the very next year, there was and is a deep and pervading impression in the minds of all true patriots that the repeal would be a breach of faith dangerous to the Union. Well, the Missouri compromise was adopted at even a more fearful crisis than the compromise of 1850; it was rendered a holy thing to countless hearts by the virtue, the patriotism, and the matchless eloquence of the mighty men who were most active in securing its adoption and by its beneficent and glorious influences in hushing that stormy sea of strife which had threatened to overwhelm the ark of our liberty; it was consecrated by the acquiescence of the North, the South, the East, and the West, throughout the lifetime of one generation and a large portion of the lifetime of another; and, all this being true, it certainly should not have been repealed last year for any such considerations as then existed, especially as the whole atmosphere of the whole country was filled with warning voices, that the repeal would inevitably produce those tremendous evils which it has since produced—that it would, in short, endanger the entire fabric of our Government.

"Silex" promises, in his next, to show, "that, from first to last," the compromise "was repudiated and violated by the North." If any person can show this, we have perfect faith in our correspondent's ability to do it. We assure him that our readers await his "next" with lively interest.

LELA.—THE LOST ONE.

BY HENRY T. HARRIS.

The bells which toll the parting hour of day,
The winds which sigh amid the leaves at even,
Whispered a requiem while the angels came
And bore her spirit to its home in heaven.

She was a fair-haired girl of seventeen,
Whose heart was gladsome as a summer bird.
When far amid the forest solitude,
It carols forth its low, sweet notes unheard.

Her sunny curls, like shattered sun-beams, lay
Upon her brow as sunbeams on a cloud,
And softly blended with the loosened folds
Of her last winding sheet—the ghostly shroud.

The rose had faded from her velvet cheek,
But still the lily slept in beauty there
As if 'twere nourished by the mellow light
Which fell in showers from her soft sunny hair.

Her hands upon her pulseless bosom lay
Like patted doves within a downy nest,
And seemed to guard the dusty door—from whence
Her soul had fluttered to its Eden rest.

They bore her to the pale, sad realms of shade—
That gentle one—the loved and early dead:
They paid the last sad tribute of a tear
With broken sighs above her lowly bed.

No sculptured tablet marks her place of sleep,
But willows wave in pendent beauty there,
And giant oaks stand sentinels to guard
The low, sweet slumbers of a form so fair.

Sleep, Lela, sleep: no sound disturbs thee now—
No disappointments chill thy throbless breast,
For high above yon star-paved dome thy soul
Has found, beneath the "Tree of Life," a rest.

Thou art a shining angel—long-loved one—
Who flittest where the silver fountains play—
Upon whose wings the starry beams of heaven
Shine in bright splendor through eternal day.

ROSE VALE, KY., 1855.

VIRGINIA.—The vote for Governor in 1851 stood, for Summers, 60,286; for Johnson, 67,427. The Democratic majority 7,141. In 1852 the majority for Pierce, over Gen. Scott, for President, was 15,281. Cass's majority over Taylor in 1848 was only 1,548. At the State election in 1852, the Whigs elected 16 Senators, and the Democrats 34; to the House the Whigs elected 65 members, and the Democrats 87. The whole number of votes cast for Governor, in 1851, was 127,713; the whole number cast in 1851, for President, was 129,595.

LYNCHING AT WESTON, MISSOURI.—A man named Phillips, who, it is said, handed to M'Crea the pistol with which the latter shot Clark at a Kansas meeting, was tarred and feathered at Weston, Mo., on the 17th inst. He then went to Leavenworth, and, on the 18th, the people of that place were getting up an excitement against him.

HORRIBLE DEATH.—Dr. M. P. Morgan, of Vanderburg co., Ind., came to his death on the 15th inst. under the following circumstances: He came home intoxicated, and his wife and three children went to a neighboring house. Shortly after, the house took fire and he perished in the flames.

☞ A fellow was arrested in Portland yesterday on a charge of stealing $16 and a pistol.

THE WASHINGTON UNION.—The Washington Union suggests that Gov. Gardner's whole object in putting his veto upon the bill to eject Judge Loring from office was to subserve the cause of the Know-Nothing party in Virginia. This shows what sort of creature the editor of the Union is. No editor, with an honest pulsation in his whole body, no editor with a single drop of blood in his veins better than the saliva of a toad or the vile secretion of a polecat, would ever think of making so disgraceful a suggestion.

The editor of the Union, in his article making this attack upon Gov. Gardner, assails our late suggestions as to a compromise between the true patriots of the North and those of the South. Alluding to what we said as to the possibility of an amicable adjustment of any honest differences of opinion in the two sections as to the fugitive slave law, he states, that, if we meant anything, we meant "that the South should agree so to modify the fugitive slave law that the question of ownership shall be tried and settled by a jury in the free States where the slave may be arrested." Now the fellow knows, that, in the very articles he is commenting on, the principal suggestion which we made in relation to the fugitive slave law, the only suggestion which we dwelt on in relation to the modification of that law, was that the law, if any modification at all should be deemed necessary by the patriotic portion of the North, should be so modified as to secure to a fugitive slave a speedy trial by jury in the place he escaped from. This was the point that we especially elaborated; and the editor of the Union, in saying, that, if we meant anything, we meant that the question of ownership should be tried and settled by a jury in the free States, is guilty of as infamous a lie as a tongue fashioned for the exclusive purpose of lying could ever utter. We are aware that the editor of the Union is fighting for his bread and meat, but this is no apology for his abominable calumnies. He can obviate all necessity for victuals by the use of a halter or a grape-vine; and, if his fear of the devil prompts him to live as long as he can, he might as well live by stealing as lying. Suppose he make another effort to get a few thousand dollars from the U. S Treasury under false pretences. To be sure his last effort in that way was branded by the unanimous action of Congress as an attempt to swindle, but he may be more lucky next time. Swindlers are said to grow adroit by practice.

FIRES.—A frame cottage on Madison street between Thirteenth and Fourteenth, owned and occupied by Mr. Wm. Kellum, mate on the steamer Jacob Strader, was destroyed by fire on Saturday evening. A thief took advantage of the alarm occasioned by the fire (Mr. Kellum not being at home) and stole $140 in gold and a $20 bill on the State Bank of Ohio.

On Saturday night the grocery-store of W. L. Clark on the Point near the saw-mills was partially destroyed by fire.

About 12 o'clock last night a false alarm was raised, for the purpose, it was understood, of settling a difficulty between two of the companies, the Lafayette and the Relief. Some fellow got into the Relief Engine House, tapped the bell three times, and then jumped out of the back window before the warden saw him. The Relief did not ring any more, and the Union, American Eagle, and Mechanic gave no alarm, the watchmen in the wards where they are located being cognizant of the purpose of the alarm. But the bells of the Lafayette, Kentucky, Hope, and Rescue were rung for some time.

☞ An inquest was held at Evansville, on the 22d inst., over the body of a man found floating in the river. It was doubtless that of a passenger on a steamboat. We give a description, by which the friends of the deceased may possibly be able to identify the body. He was of medium height, about thirty years old, heavy set, and had dark brown hair. He had on a black cloth coat and pants and black satin vest, fine boots, red top, laced. On his person were found a gold hunting lever watch, with heavy gold vest chain, eleven $5 gold pieces, and 75 cents in silver; no papers except a newspaper dated this month; a copper baggage-check with "41 T" on it. Verdict of the jury—supposed accidental drowning.

LEXINGTON RACES.—The race on Wednesday, best three in five, was won by Murphy's Glencoe gelding, Frank Harper. Time, 1:47¼—1:47¼—1:48¼.

On Thursday, the first race, two mile heats, was won by Viley's Wagner mare, Florida. Time, 3:42¼—3:43¼. The second race, mile heats, was won by Harper's Nolte filly, Mary Leach. Time, 1:47¾—1:47¼.

On Friday, the first race, two mile heats for three-year olds, was won by Campbell's Wagner filly. Time, 3:47¼—3:52—3:47—3:47¾. The second race, mile heats, was won by Harper's Helen Swigert. Time, 1:48¼—1:47¼—1:48.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT. — Michael Faron, an Irishman, who has been employed at the United States Hospital as a servant, fell from the top of an omnibus late Saturday evening, on Main between Brook and Floyd streets. He was picked up by Mr. J W. C. Steuernagel and carried to his residence, where he was kindly cared for until medical aid was procured. His right leg between the knee and ancle was badly fractured, and his head slightly hurt. He is now at the Marine Hospital.

☞ A free negro named Freeman, who resided in Alton, Ill., was lately shot by officers from St. Louis while in the act of running off slaves from Missouri. He made his escape, but died from the wounds received a few days ago.

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin:

THE REPEAL OF THE MISSOURI COMPROMISE—No. 2.

GENTLEMEN: You conclude your reply to my letter of the 17th inst. by asserting that you do not regard this discussion as "a matter of much current moment," and that "it concerns the welfare of the country more nearly at this crisis to compose existing difficulties than to review dead ones." It may be true that the adjustment of existing difficulties is of far more importance than all other questions connected with the Missouri compromise, and I wish to offer some suggestions upon that subject before closing this correspondence. But how are we to approach that adjustment without fully understanding the origin and nature of those difficulties? Those who shut their eyes to the past will certainly prove blind to the future.

If the South has been guilty of such bad faith, such injury and wrong, as to justify the excitement prevailing in the North, reparation should be made. But if the Missouri compromise was established, not by an irrevocable compact, but by a law liable to repeal, and was adopted with a knowledge of that liability and of the strong though ineffectual opposition of the South; if it overthrew in the Territories the foundation of republican government; if it excluded the South from vast territories to which she had equal rights with the North, and gave her only a promise to do what the North was previously clearly bound to do, and which the North failed to perform notwithstanding the enormous consideration exacted; if it was a wrong to the South, forced upon her by the North; and if it has been violated and disregarded by the North—then it ought to have been repealed; the North has no right to complain, and the South owes her no reparation.

You replied to me with great ingenuity and eulogium. I shall answer you with facts:

1st. The Missouri compromise was not a compact. In saying this, I do not rely upon technicalities. It was not a compact either legally or morally. You will admit that, in a legal sense, it was not a compact; that the members of Congress, if they had all united, had no authority to make such a compact; that they could only enact a law, subject, like every other law, to be repealed. But you contend, that, morally, it was a compact, and as such entitled to "almost the same force as a positive provision of the Constitution of the United States." I contend that, viewed as a compact, it was a palpable violation of a positive and highly important provision of the Constitution, and entitled to no force whatever.

One of the great objects of the framers of the Federal Constitution, and of the States that sanctioned it, was to protect each and every State against the power of any and all other States Hence it is declared, that "no State shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation" (art. 1, sec. 10.) Both of the Senators from Virginia, and twelve out of fourteen of her Representatives, opposed the compromise to the last. Other Southern States were represented by opponents of the compromise, whilst a majority of the members of Congress from several Southern States voted for it.

If the last mentioned States had entered into an express compact with the Northern States to exclude slavery from the Louisiana territory north of 36 deg. 30 min., the compact would not only have been void, but would have been denounced from one end of the country to the other, as a treasonable confederation, as an attempt by a majority of the States, in violation of the Constitution, to trample upon the rights of the minority. The Missouri compromise was established by a law which its opponents knew they could repeal whenever they could obtain a majority in Congress. Until repealed it was submitted to by the South. But if an attempt had been made to establish it by a compact between the States, whose Representatives sustained it, it would not have been submitted to I therefore deny that it was acquiesced in by the South as a compact, and I protest against the attempt to give it that character, when it is certain that, if it had been made the subject of a compact, it would have been treasonable, and void, and spurned by every patriot in the land whether North or South.

2dly. You assert that the compromise "was fulfilled in practice by the North," and that "when its provisions promised to inure to the advantage of the North, it was repealed by the agency of a few of the Representatives of the North and the mass of those of the South." The inference from your whole article is, that the South received all the advantages contemplated by the compromise, and the North none. Look at the facts.

In 1803 France ceded to the United States the territory of Louisiana, embracing the country now comprised in the States of Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, and Iowa, and the territories of Kansas and Nebraska, and most of Minnesota.

After the acquisition of California and New Mexico, the North contended that Southerners could not hold slaves in those territories; that the law of Mexico did not recognize negro-slavery; that those territories came to us subject to that law, and must remain subject thereto until Congress should repeal the Mexican law and authorize slavery.

According to that reasoning it is clear that Southerners had a right to hold slaves anywhere in the territory of Louisiana, because the law of France recognized slavery there, and the territory came to us subject to that law.

But this is not all. The treaty of cession provided that "the inhabitants of the territory shall be incorporated in the Union of the United States and admitted as soon as possible, according to the principles of the Federal Constitution, to the enjoyment of all rights, advantages, and immunities of citizens of the United States, and in the meantime they shall be maintained and protected in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property, and the religion which they profess."

At the date of the cession there were 1300 slaves in the territory now belonging to Missouri. The owners of these slaves, and the slaveholders who subsequently settled in the territory upon the faith of the Federal Constitution, of the French law recognising slavery, and which remained unrepealed, and of the treaty of cession, were unquestionably entitled to be admitted into the Union upon terms of equality with the original States, the majority of which were slaveholding States when the Federal Constitution was adopted. If the territory had come to us as free territory, subject to a law prohibiting slavery, and if slaveholders had occupied it in violation of that law, there might have been some ground for opposing their admission, some basis for a compromise. But as matters stand there was no such ground, no such basis.

By the ordinance of 1787, slavery was prohibited in the "Northwest Territory," forming now the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin. When Ohio applied for admission into the Union in 1802, the South had the same right to object to it, as the North had to object to the admission of Missouri in 1820. The South had the same right to say, "Ohio shall not be admitted, unless the residue of the Northwest Territory is relieved from the ordinance of 1787," as the North had to say, "Missouri shall not be admitted unless slavery is excluded from the residue of the Louisiana territory north of 36 deg. 30 min.

It was under such circumstances, with such claims upon the country, with such rights, that the people of Missouri, at the session of 1818-19, applied for admission into the Union. It was conceded that there were over 60,000 inhabitants in the territory. No objection was made on that score.

But, upon the motion of a Northern man, by Northern votes, the bill for the admission of Missouri was amended in the House so as to require the people of Missouri to adopt in their State constitution a clause forever prohibiting slavery in the State. This was called the "restriction clause." The bill as amended passed the House and went into the Senate, but was not acted upon at that session. At the next session of 1819-'20 the application was renewed.

The House, in opposition to the whole Southern delegation, again inserted the "restriction clause." In the mean time, the Senate passed a bill for admitting Missouri without restriction or conditions upon the subject of slavery; that bill the House rejected. Afterwards, upon the motion of Judge Thomas, of Illinois, the Senate adopted an amendment by which the "restriction clause," prohibiting slavery in Missouri, was stricken out, and in lieu of it a clause was inserted prohibiting slavery in the residue of the Louisiana Territory north of 36 deg. 30 min. The bill, thus amended, finally passed both houses. This is what has generally been called the Missouri compromise? What was the basis of it?

The people of Missouri were entitled to admission upon terms of equality with the original States. No restriction was ever imposed, nor could be imposed, upon any of the original States in regard to slavery. The people of every State have a perfect right to regulate their domestic affairs to suit themselves. The attempt to impose such restriction upon the people of Missouri was a palpable violation of their rights. They had a right to be admitted without such restriction. The South had a right to demand, and did demand, that they should be thus admitted. The North refused thus to admit them. Finally, a portion of the Southern members of Congress, in order to get rid of the restriction upon Missouri, voted with the North for excluding slavery from the residue of the Louisiana Territory north of 36 deg. 30 min. Here, as in another notable instance, the North first denied to us an unquestionable right, and then made the pretended concession of that right the basis and consideration for excluding us from territory to which we had an equal right with the North. The North gave up the "restriction clause," which she had no more right to impose on Missouri than I have to take your purse, and in consideration therefor she forced the South to surrender Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, and most of Minnesota—territory six times as large as Arkansas, which was below the line. Nor was Arkansas exclusively appropriated to the South, as the territory north of the line was to the North. The people of the North, whilst they forbade slaveholders to go north of the line, retained the same right with us to go south of it.

True, Arkansas was afterwards admitted as a slave State; but not under the compromise. The compromise act made no reference whatever to the territory south of the line. It left our rights as to that territory precisely as it found them. If we had no right to occupy Arkansas before the act, we had none afterwards. But, as has been already shown, slaveholders had a right to occupy Arkansas, and to be admitted into the Union after occupying it, independent of the compromise act. If, however, you insist that the North would not have consented to the admission of Arkansas as a slave State but for the compromise, I will not dispute the proposition; it only proves that the Northern members of Congress were as fanatical, as regardless of our rights, as unconcerned about the Union of these States, in 1836 as in 1820. Moreover, if the South got Arkansas by the compromise, the amount was balanced by the admission of Iowa as a free State. It will not be disputed, that the compromise gave that State to the North. What then becomes of your assertion that the compromise was repealed "when about to enure to the advantage of the North?" Again: From 1820 to 1854 the compromise act excluded slaveholders from Kansas, Nebraska, and Minnesota Territories large enough for half a dozen such States as Kentucky. Did it not during all that time enure to the advantage of the North? Was it of no advantage to the North that for 34 years she had the exclusive right to occupy those territories and to bring them in as States? The North got Iowa, and it was not our fault that she did not get more. The compromise act of March 6, 1820, was strictly obeyed and "fulfilled in practice" by the South. In my next, I will undertake to show that from first to last it was repudiated and violated by the North.

EVENING BULLETIN.

MONDAY EVENING. MAY 28, 1855.

STRAWBERRIES.—Everybody loves strawberries, and yet how little attention is paid to their culture, even by those who have an abundance of land. We know of nothing among the choice fruits which yields so abundantly for the labor as the improved varieties of the strawberry; and, in their successful culture, there is nothing more intricate than there is in growing a patch of cabbages. For every day's labor properly applied to the planting and cultivation of the strawberry, one bushel of choice fruit may be obtained. We have grown, with no extra care, from a piece of ground but ten yards square, in a single season, four bushels of strawberries. We kept no account of the labor bestowed upon them, but we do not believe it exceeded three days in the year. Many persons, in the spring, with a good deal of enthusiasm procure the choicest varieties of plants and pay the highest prices for them, put them out, and leave them without cultivation to be overrun with weeds for the remainder of the season, and, if the weather proves dry, their money and their labor are lost.

The present season our market is but sparingly supplied with strawberries, and these are furnished by only a few of the most careful growers, who took the precaution to cultivate and protect their beds from the effects of the severe drought of last season, while the entire beds of a large number in the vicinity, who pretend to grow them, were entirely burned up. Some fine specimens of the more hardy varieties have been exhibited upon the Horticultural Society's tables, but we do not remember to have seen among them a single dish of the Burr's New Pine, the variety for which so much was claimed for its superior excellence last year, and, so far as we have been able to ascertain, except upon the grounds of one gentleman, Mr. Ormsby Hite, this variety has entirely died out. So extensive was the loss of beds last year, that few plants could be procured for setting new beds the present spring.

To guard against the effects of drought, the ground between the plants should be kept mellow, the weeds and grass kept out, and the surface mulched with old tan-bark or partially decomposed forest leaves or old straw.

Our friend Chas. A. Peabody, Esq., of Georgia, and other cultivators in the South have succeeded in having an abundant supply of strawberries for eight or ten months in the year, from some of the common varieties among us, and the only secret of this is to select a light, sandy loam for the beds, near a stream of water if possible, and, if not, where water is convenient, keep the plants free from weeds, mulch them as here directed, keep the beds well watered from a garden engine or watering-pot, and cut the runners off as fast as they appear.

Of the best varieties for cultivation, the method of setting the plants, &c., we shall have something to say in time for making new beds.

We excuse ourselves for not saying anything on this subject till so late a period of the season on the ground that no reliable plants could be procured for forming new beds.

The Weston Argus, of last Saturday, furnishes some additional particulars of the lynching of a man named Phillips, on the 17th inst., in that town. Some of the citizens of Leavenworth City, it seems, arrested Phillips, took him to the Missouri side of the river, administered to him a coat of tar and feathers, rode him on a rail, and then he was put up at mock auction, and sold by a negro.

The cause of this outrage is thus stated: Phillips had incurred the prejudice and displeasure of the people of Leavenworth City, by the part which he took in the murder of Clarke, by McCrea. He handed McCrea the pistol with which he shot Clarke; and added to this he is charged with being an active and enthusiastic agent of the Abolitionists, and swore to the protest against the validity of the election in the Leavenworth district. Some time previous a public meeting requested Phillips to leave the Territory—but this he failed to do. Instead of leaving on the day appointed, he collected some forty Freesoilers and Abolitionists, and set them at defiance. Things continued thus till Thursday, when he was taken to Weston, and treated as already stated. The people of Weston are free from all censure in this transaction, for they refused to participate in it.—St. Louis Republican.

The people of Weston, a Missouri town, may be free from all censure for the transaction in question, but it is very strange that the mob, if they had no promise or encouragement of co-operation or support from Missourians, took Phillips from Kansas to a Missouri town before lynching him. Why didn't the lynchers do their lynching in Kansas? Why did they go over into Missouri to perpetrate an outrage? Was it merely to reciprocate the outrages previously committed in their Territory by Missourians? Have some of the Missourians and some of the Kansas men agreed to establish a reciprocity of outrages—an interchange of deeds of ruffianism—a free-trade in brutality and murder.

We have seen no evidence that Mr. Phillips deserved lynching. If, as is stated, he handed a pistol to McRea when the latter had been nearly stunned by the blow of a club, there is no reasonable presumption that he wished or expected the weapon to be used except in self-defence. If he swore to the protest against the validity of the election in the Leavenworth district, we have no doubt that he swore to a protest against the validity of an infamous fraud. If he made active exertions to prevent Kansas from becoming a slaveholding territory, he did only what he had a perfect right to do under the Nebraska and Kansas law, the organic law of the territory. If, on being warned by a public meeting to leave Kansas on a designated day, he collected a band of his friends to resist violence to his person, he did what was right and commendable. As at present advised, we regret that his friends did not stand by him when the crisis came and give a good account of the mob.

A CANDIDATE AT LAST.—It was telegraphed from Lexington on Saturday that James O. Harrison, of that city, was the Democratic candidate for Congress in that district.

THE LARGEST SHIP IN THE WORLD.—The public is probably not aware that the largest ship in the world is in the course of construction for the United States Navy, by Mr. Steers, in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. She is the steam frigate Niagara. "She is," says the Tribune, "truly the most graceful, satisfying work of art we have ever beheld, and, looking upon the faultless curves of her timbers, and the fascinating sweep of her enormous hull, one feels as every artistic and thoughtful mind must sometimes have done when gazing upon a sleeping infant or a bank of cumulous clouds in a summer sky." The Tribune says further:

The Niagara is, we learn, the largest of the five screw steam frigates which are now in process of construction for the Navy, and, as we have stated, the largest ship in the world; and we have no doubt that she will be as preeminent in beauty and in all the qualities which a ship should possess as she will be in size.

The actual dimensions of this magnificent vessel are as follows: Tonnage 5,200; extreme length on deck 345 feet; load line 323 feet; extreme breadth 55 feet; depth of hold 31 feet; there are three decks besides the orlop. The armament will consist of 12 eleven-inch pivot guns to carry 170 lb shot and a charge of 15 lbs of powder. She is to be full ship-rigged, her mainmast being 111 feet long and 3 feet 4 inches diameter; the main yard will be 55 feet and the mizzen spanker boom 67 feet.

The Niagara is constructed wholly of live oak. Congress appropriated one million of dollars for her construction, but her cost it is thought will not be over $900,000.

NEWS ITEMS.

Superiority of American Iron.—It is clearly established, says the Buffalo Democracy, in spite of some of our professional office-seekers who have sought to give the English the prestige of making the best iron, that the American is better than the British. On the Reading road, where careful examinations have been recorded, and with a tonnage unsurpassed by any railroad on the globe, Zerah Colburn says it is found that American iron wears out but from one-third to one-half as fast as English iron. The average of six years' wear of 60 lbs. English rail was above 11 per cent annually. The average of four years' wear of the "Erie" (English) pattern was 16 per cent. annually. In American rolled and pig iron the same general superiority is observable. The American pig is both harder and tougher. Some of the leading locomotive builders will use no other than American on account of its superior hardness for cylinders, driving wheels, etc. For car wheels, where the best iron is indispensable, American pig is used, we believe, exclusively.

☞The trial of Shackelford, in the U. S. circuit court at Frankfort for robbing the mail, resulted on Saturday in his acquittal. He was then put on trial upon another indictment for deserting the mail.

Another Warning to Fraudulent Claim Agents. The Commissioner of Pensions received a telegraphic dispatch from the chief clerk, S. Cole, at Rochester, New York, announcing the conviction of A. B. Graham for frauds upon the Pension Office. He was sentenced by the U. States district judge to seven years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. This makes the eighteenth prosecution to conviction and punishment since Com. Waldo first assumed the duties of his office.

☞The law of imprisonment for debt has been abolished in Massachusetts. It is rather a late date of the Christian era for such an event to take place, but better late than never.

A Prompt and Gallant Officer.—We have already announced that the United States frigate Constitution, Commodore Mayo, was seen to the southward of Cuba, making for the port of Havana. The Constitution was late the flagship of the African squadron, and was under orders for home, after an absence of more than two years. When within about three hundred miles of Portsmouth, N. H. (her destined port), she boarded an American vessel and obtained a file of New York papers, in which it was stated that Commodore McCauley had been dispatched to the Gulf, in the San Jacinto, in great haste, and that a speedy collision with Spain was inevitable. The resolution of Commodore Mayo, one of the bravest officers that ever walked a deck, was instantly taken. Believing that his services might be needed, orders were immediately given to "bout ship," and soon old Ironsides was hastening to the aid of McCauley's little squadron.

Law in Kansas.—D. J. Johnson, Esq., who is, we believe, one of the Judges of the United States courts in Kansas, in explaining the positions taken by him in certain speeches, says: "At Weston, I stated there was no criminal law in force in Kansas Territory. At Leavenworth City, I stated that the old Territorial laws of Missouri were not in force, and if they were not in force, the common law was not, and if neither, then there was no adopted rule whereby men could be tried and punished for offences, in the Territory, save that rule based in the common weal and enforced by the strong arm of the people."—St. Louis Rep.

A Cruel Design Frustrated.—An attempt was made yesterday to drive a trotting mare twenty miles within sixty minutes, over the Centreville (L. I.) course. After accomplishing twelve miles in one or two minutes less than the proportion of time necessary to perform the task, the animal cast a shoe and was withdrawn, to the disappointment of a large number of sporting men. The poor animal was a good deal distressed, and was not likely to have performed the allotted task.—N. Y Courier.

ANOTHER HURRICANE.—We find the following account of a hurricane which took place near Charlotte, Michigan, in a Detroit paper, taken from the Eaton Republican, without date. The hurricane strongly resembled that which, on Tuesday last, caused much havoc north of Chicago:

As seen from Charlotte, it presented the appearance of a huge moving column of smoke, reaching from the earth to the clouds, sometimes appearing to sink to the earth, and then suddenly looming up again to the heavens. It is described by those who saw it as a magnificent spectacle. As near as the southern outskirts of our village large quantities of green leaves came down from the air, and a little further south the fields are strewn with shingles containing nail holes, and giving every evidence of having been torn from roofs; a heavy black walnut roof-board ten feet long and covered with shingles also came down into a neighboring field; judging from the large nails with which the board had been fastened it must have been wrenched from some roof with great violence. A large quantity of hail fell about a mile south of us. The hailstones are reported to have been the size of hens' eggs and to have done considerable injury to fruit trees and cattle. We have heard of large quantities of forest trees that were torn up and of several buildings that were laid in ruins; of one man that was badly injured by the destruction of the house which he was in.

P. S.—The tornado is described as being shaped like a funnel with the smallest end down. It spun and skipped over the earth like a huge top, sometimes passing quite distance of country without touching the ground, and then stooping to scatter rail fences, log houses, and saw logs, and to pull up large old forest trees with its playful point. We are informed that the house and barn of Mr. Gridley, of Kalamo, were destroyed, and Mr. Gridley badly injured.

FROM THE RIO GRANDE.—The True American, published at Goliad, Texas, publishes the following:

By the kindness of H. C. Davis, who left the Rio Grande on Monday last, we learn that another revolution has broke out in Mexico. About fifteen hundred soldiery had crossed the river, headed by Garza, ex Governor of Tamaulipas; Capestran, Caravajal, O. Campo, and J. M. Canales. Their detention this long has been in consequence of their waiting the arrival of Robles from New Orleans, who was recently banished from Mexico by Santa Anna.

The following letter from the special correspondent of the American, at Brownsville, goes to authenticate the above statement:

It is a notorious fact that another revolution will open in a few days under Gen. Caravajal, and the ball will commence at Camargo. Gen. Woll received a dispatch by courier yesterday, saying Caravajal was opposite Camargo with 400 men, one-half Americans; but nobody believes the latter part of the report. The fillibusteros may get some Americans to join them from Corpus Christi, such as discharged teamsters and soldiers, but none from off this side of the Rio Grande. The Americans here have all seen the elephant.

Night before last an entire company of soldiers deserted from Matamoras to this side, but not one has been seen here. The whole matter has been thus far managed with masterly secrecy. Heaven knows what the result will be; the Mexicans are queer geniuses in regard to revolutions, notwithstanding their natural love of the thing. Gen. Woll has thrown a great many citizens in prison who he suspects of being friendly to the revolutionists.

BANK DIRECTORS INDICTED.—The act of Assembly of 1853 provides that no director or other officer of any bank in the State of Maryland shall borrow any money from the bank of which he is an officer, and if any director or other officer shall be convicted upon indictment of, directly or indirectly, violating this section, he shall be punished by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court

We understand that, under the provisions of the above quoted law, the grand jury yesterday made presentment against Charles R. Taylor that he did borrow from the Bank of Commerce money, while he was president and director of said bank, in violation of said law; also against Frederick Schumacher and Thomas G. Little, that they did borrow from the Bank of Commerce money, while they were directors of said bank, in violation of law.

The grand jury, we also understand, presented Charles R. Taylor and Frederick Schumacher, on the charge that "they did conspire to defraud the Bank of Commerce of $4,500" (by borrowing money from the bank, it is supposed).—Balt. Patriot.

Cod Liver Oil,

FOR CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, &c.

THE late firm of Rushton, Clark, & Co. being dissolved by the DEATH OF W. L. RUSHTON (the only Rushton ever connected with the firm), THEIR GENUINE COD LIVER OIL will in future be prepared only by HEGEMAN, CLARK & CO., surviving partners and sole successors. It was MR CLARK who went to Newfoundland to superintend its manufacture, and he is the only Druggist who ever went from the U. S. for that purpose, and as he will continue his supervision of that branch of our business, we will warrant our OIL PURE and GENUINE. As success in its use depends upon its purity be particular to see that the signature of HEGEMAN, CLARK, & CO., or RUSHTON, CLARK, & CO., is over the cork of each bottle. Hundreds of persons who had been using the Oil of other makers without success have been restored to health by the PURE OIL OF OUR MANUFACTURE. Be particular in ordering to specify HEGEMAN, CLARK, & CO., as it was Mr Clark and not Rushton who has superintended its manufacture; and since Mr. Rushton's death there has been a Rushton's Oil introduced which is not in any way connected with Rushton, Clark, & Co., the only representatives of that firm being HEGEMAN, CLARK, & CO.

LATEST NEWS.

☞We are indebted to the attentive officers of the Highflyer for river favors.

MAY CHERRIES.—We are indebted to Judge John G. Taylor, of Fruitland, Henry co., Ky., for some of his early cherries fully ripe. On looking at them, we thought them almost too beautiful to be eaten; but, on tasting them, we found them far too delicious not be eaten.

☞The Secretary of the Treasury has remitted to Henry N. Sands, Esq., surveyor of this port, $5,000 to pay contractors on the Louisville marine hospital.

☞Rev. Dr. Philip Lindsley, of New Albany, died at the residence of his son in Nashville on Friday. Dr. L. was a delegate of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. He was formerly professor of theology in Princeton Seminary, and an able and pure man.

LOTTERY SWINDLE.—Two rascals have been doing a swindling lottery business in Cincinnati under the firms of J. F. West and Co. and O. M. Harris and Co. They had circulars printed from genuine lottery schemes and distributed throughout the country. They drew quite a large number of customers; but the latter never received anything in return for their investments but letters of sympathy for their losses and recommendations to try their luck again. The firm of O. M. Harris & Co. did business in Cleveland also. The receipts of the two rascals were from $100 to $150 a day. Recently they became alarmed at the prospect of their detection and left Cincinnati suddenly, since which time more than five hundred letters directed to them have accumulated in the post-office of that city. The Cincinnati papers recommend that a sharp look out be kept for them, as they will doubtless go into the same business elsewhere.

SAUT SHIP CANAL.—By the Detriot Tribune we learn that all that is now necessary to close up the contract for the building of the canal, is its acceptance by Engineer John T. Clark, of New York, who is detained by illness. When the acceptance is signed, the State officers are to convey to the company patents of the lands. It is understood that the work has cost nearly double the estimate, or not far from one mill on of dollars. The Tribune gives the dimensions of the canal as follosw:

Its length is one mile and an eighth, its width 70 feet, depth 12 feet, and of sufficient capacity to admit steamboats of 2,000 tons burden, or as large as the Western World, and larger than can pass up the St. Mary's river. This is sufficiently large for all the trade that will be carried on through it for years if not for ages to come, though it may exceed the most sanguine expectations that have ever been formed of it. If there were a ship canal round the falls of Niagara of equal capacity, and a few thousand dollars expended in improving the navigation of the St. Clair Flats and St. Mary's river, a steamer of 2,000 tons might make an uninterrupted passage from Liverpool to Font du Lac, at the head of Lake Superior. Can the importance of such a work be over-estimated?

WOOD & CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS.—This, the original and unrivalled company of Ethiopian Minstrels, will give an entertainment, at Mozart Hall, this evening, as per advertisement. In further notice of them we cannot do better than to copy the following from the last number of the Washington Union—a paper, be it remembered, which is exceedingly chary of its praises of such performances:

These celebrated minstrels give their last concert in Washington this evening. It is almost unnecessary to remind our readers of the fact—for so great has been the throng to see and hear the performances of this much-talked of company—that had Iron Hall possessed twice its present capacity, it would have been filled to overflowing every evening this week. Young and old appear united in the opinion that these minstrels have thrown completely into the shade all the organized bands of counterfeit darkies who have hitherto attempted to crack their bones and jokes before a Washington public. Their entertainments are fresh, varied, unique, and telling upon all those who have ear for true melody, or a keen perception of the ludicrous.

CITY COURT.

MONDAY, May 28.

Ann Greenwood and Letty Ettwell, drunkenness and disorderly conduct. They are old customers, and have been in the workhouse repeatedly. Bail in $100 for one month. Work house.

Lucinda Hartley was up on a similar charge. Bail in $100 for one month. Workhouse.

Patrick Noonan, drunkenness and disorderly conduct. It appeared that there had been a disturbance in the neighborhood of Noonan's house, but no arrest was made. Noonan met the officer (Howard) and told him that the police wouldn't arrest a certain class of persons, no matter what they did, when, if they had been Irish, they would have been arrested forthwith. The officer then arrested him, and, Noonan offering to resist, Howard struck him with a club Discharged.

Thompson Mason, attorney-at-law, evidently a gentleman, but reduced in circumstances by hard drinking, was found lying in the passage of a house Mr. Mason said he was taken very sick, and, by permission of the gentleman of the house, laid down in the passage. He was let off.

John Anderson, stealing $14 from Wm. Crane, and a pistol from Mr. Stonehouse at Portland. Crane and Anderson are boatmen and were room-mates at Stonehouse's in Portland. Crane said that the money was taken from his pantaloons' pocket under his head while asleep. Anderson alleged that the money was given to him for safe-keeping by Crane. The pistol was taken from behind the counter of Stonehouse. Anderson was committed to answer a charge of felony.

Com'th by Julia Burns vs. Edmund and Ellen Aikin, peace warrant. The parties are Irish. Mrs. Burns is in a very delicate situation. Mrs. Aikin struck Mrs. Burns, pushed her down the steps, and threatened her. There were four Irish women in the case, and they alleged their grief at the same time. Mrs. Maker, one of the witnesses, had, from appearances, not fully got over her last spree. Aikin was there, and he attempted to restrain his wife, but he could not. The Judge remarked that Aikin must have his hands full with all these women. Aikin is young, his wife old, and Mrs. Burns is young and rather better looking. Own recognizances of Mrs. Aikin and Mrs. Burns in $100 each for three months.

Adam Stephan, assault on Fred. Kerke perger, and Joseph Auter, assault on Richard Fitzgerald. Witnesses sent before the grand jury

Frances Jones (f. w. c.), stealing a locket, chain, earrings, and some articles of apparal from Miss Fanny Weaver on the steamer Fawn. Miss W. was a passenger on the Fawn from Troy. She arrived here on Sunday morning. The articles are worth at least $30. Miss W. saw Frances wear her cape this morning.

Com'th by Mrs. Bryant vs. Robert Collins, peace warrant. Collins is a tenant of Mrs. Bryant, and Mrs. Bryant has been supported by Mr. Collins. Mr. Collins promised to leave the premises forthwith.

AGRICULTURAL DIVISON OF THE PATENT OFFICE.—Mountain Flax.—A small quantity of flax seed from the Carpathian mountains, in Poland, was presented to the Patent Office by Mr. Henry Kalussowski, for experiment in the high northern regions of Maine, Michigan, and Minnesota. If sown in time the flax will mature in September.—Wash. Union.

New Book.

THE Castle Builders, by the author of "Hearts' Ease," "The Heir of Redclyffe," &c. D. Appleton & Co. New York.

A simple but beautiful story, told in a simple and beautiful manner. The author studiously avoids all forced and unnatural incidents, and the equally fashionable affectation of extravagant language. It is destined to great popularity among all classes of readers, for its sketches of life seem to us at once lively, spirited, pathetic, as well as graceful and vivid. All who read it will become interested in its fascinating pages and close it with the impression that it is a good book, and deserving of universal popularity.

EVENING BULLETIN.

Steamer Glendy Burke.—We learn from Mr. Palacio that the steamer Glendy Burke, recently sunk at Cairo, will probably be raised. She struck a rock in rounding to at Cairo. She was bound from St. Louis to New Orleans with a full Cargo. The Sultana and two lighters were alongside of the Burke taking off her cargo. The water was about three feet over her lower deck aft, but as the river was falling fast she would soon be left high and dry.

☞ A free negro named Edmund Prince, formerly residing in Carrollton, was arrested there last week on a charge of aiding slaves to escape. Mr. M. Giltner, of Hunter's Bottom, lost five last week.

☞ The river was again rising slowly last evening with over 6 feet water in the canal. The weather during the last two days has been unusually cool.

NEWS ITEMS.

Declines.—Brevet Lieut. Col. Braxton Bragg, of the third artillery, has declined the majority in the new cavalry regiment recently tendered to him.

Hempfield Railroad.—It is stated that the Hempfield Railroad Company has contracted with the Crescent Mills at Wheeling for all the iron necessary to finish the road from Wheeling to Washington, Pennsylvania. The amount of iron required will be about 3,500 tons.

☞ The boiler of the steam-mill, near Rome, Ind., belonging to John Weston, former Representative from Perry county, exploded a few days since, killing six men, and tearing the mill to pieces. It even threw the sills from their places the distance of several feet, making a total wreck of the whole mill.

☞ In the case of Kirkman vs. Wall, Executor, tried last week in Coffeeville, Miss., the jury found for the plaintiff a verdict for $26,500. This in the third verdict that the plaintiff has recovered in this case, it having been twice reversed and remanded by the high court.

Rencontre in Union Co.—A reliable correspondent informs us that on Saturday last, a man named W. J. Kidd shot a man by the name of Emmerson at Uniontown. Kidd was walking down the street, Emmerson stopped him, and a quarrel ensued. Emmerson struck Kidd with his fist, cutting his face very badly, and choked him. Some friends separated them, upon which Kidd drew a small pistol from his pantaloons pocket and shot Emmerson, the ball entering the left shoulder, and lodging against the clavicle It is thought Emmerson will recover. Kidd was tried before a court of inquiry, Jeff. Brown desending him, and he was held to bail for further trial.—Henderson Rep.

The Horticultural Exhibition.—The Horticultural Exhibition on Saturday was more fully attended than that on the preceding Saturday, and the articles exhibited were much more numerous. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, got up very handsomely. Strawberries were plenty, and many of extraordinary size. Vegetables were also a prominent feature. We subjoin a list of all the articles and the names of the exhibitors, politely furnished us by Mr. Fiske, the reporter of the Merchants' Exchange:

Flowers and Bouquets.—1 hand bouquet, Jas. Richardson; 1 table do, Wm. Mix, Jun.; 1 hand do, 60 varieties of roses, 1 do do, 1 basket do do, 1 bouquet, presenting a brilliant and beautiful combination of colors, from Mrs. Peay; 1 bouquet, D. New York and Erie Railroad All Right.—We received the following dispatch on Saturday:

Cleveland, May 26.

The trains passed yesterday Lackawaxen bridge over the Delaware river on the New York and Erie Railroad. There are no obstructions now on the road. The trains are all in time. B. F. SMIT, General Agent.

Suicide by Hanging.—The case of suicide mentioned below is a most extraordinary one:

Inquest No. 79—Was held yesterday on the body of Joseph, a German boy, about ten years old. He had been employed to carry water for the workmen who are building a house about two miles from the city, on the Newburg road; and, to their great surprise, they found him late Saturday evening, hanging by the neck to a tree. No one could account for this remarkable rash act. Verdict—"Came to his death by hanging himself." W. LEE WHITE, Coroner.

[Special Dispatch to the N. Y. Daily Times.]

Washington, May 23.

The President is incensed in consequence of Mr. Perry's letter, and has determined to "guillotine" him. His successor will soon be announced. Mr. Soule is expected here next week.

The rumor that dispatches were received from Mr. Perry, announcing a complicity in the affairs between this country and Spain, or Cuba, are entirely unfounded. No dispatches of any kind from him have been received at the State Department by the last arrival.

Appointments by the President.—G. Eustis Hubbard, of Massachusetts, to be commercial agent at Cape Haytien, in Hayti, vice John L. Wilson, resigned.

Thomas Sprague, of California, to be commercial agent for the ports of Cape St. Lucas, La Paz, and San Jose, in Lower California.

LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

The steamship George Law brings the California mails of May 1st, $1,324,025 in treasure on freight, and 817 passengers

In the list of passengers will be noticed the name of Capt. Wm. Kennish, who returns from a survey of the Isthmus of Panama, from the Pacific to the Atrato river, for a canal route. He reports a successful termination to the enterprise.

The manifested treasure, it should be borne in mind, by no means represents the amount of exchange drawn on the east, or the money remitted. The bankers always prefer remitting paper, as long as they are assured of its value; inasmuch as by so doing they save both freight and insurance. Thus government drafts, certificates of deposit in New York, Eastern bank checks, &c., &c., are eagerly sought after here at a premium of 1 to 2 per cent., but the remittance does not appear except on the books of the parties interested. We are informed by Messrs. Lucas, Turner & Co., that, by to-morrow's steamer, they forward over $100,000 of such paper, and we doubt not that the other bankers also remit large amounts in the same manner.—Alta Cal., May 10.

[Correspondence of the Journal of Commerce]

Aspinwall, 15th May, 1855.

Since my last there is little news here. The Golden Gate arrived at Panama at 6 P. M., on Sunday, the 13th inst., bringing 935 passengers, probably the largest crowd that ever left California.

The entire mails, baggage, treasure and passengers reached Aspinwall about 2 o'clock on Monday, having come through in five hours from Panama, without the slightest accident.

The "Golden Age" has been brought up to Taboga from Quibo, and it is expected she will be ready to resume her place in the service about the 1st or 15th of June. She almost sunk three different times coming up the Bay of Panama, owing to the pumps choking.

Mosquitoes, sand-flies, rotten eggs, salt pork, and perspiration are the leading items of the day here. When they grow more scarce, and other luxuries more plenty, I shall have greater inducement to write you a more interesting letter. TORTUGA.

The Sea Bird brings intelligence from the Sandwich Islands of another Meiggs operation practiced there, in regard to whalemen's drafts, many of which, sold during the past season, have turned out to be forgeries.

Our accounts from the mines are more than ever flattering and encouraging.

The final adjournment of the California Legislature had been deferred till May 7th.

A bill has passed the Assembly prohibiting the Chinese from holding or working claims in the mines; also to discourage persons who cannot become citizens. Provided that the master, owner or consignee of any vessel arriving in any of the ports of this State, from any foreign State, county or territory, having on board any persons, who are incompetent by the laws of the United States, or the laws and Constitution of this State, to become citizens thereof, are required to pay a tax, for each such person, of fifty dollars.

The Senatorial question still remains unsettled, and California will remain partially unrepresented for another year.

The bill extending the Statute of Limitations five years, was signed by the Governor on the 13th inst.

The great Weber claim has been confirmed by the Board of Land Commissioners. The grant takes in the whole town of Stockton. The confirmation of this claim is regarded as one of vast benefit to that entire section of country.

The Chinese have had a grand wooden sword and brickbat battle, at Weaverville, in which one white man and several Chinese were killed.

Serious Accident.—Mr. George Harrington, formerly of Boston, Mass., was dreadfully hurt, near the mouth of Jim Crow Canon, on Wednesday. He was prospecting some distance below the trail, from which a loose rock was started by a passing mule, striking him on the top of the head and fracturing and mashing in the skull shockingly. Dr. Chase found trepanning necessary to lift the broken skull from the brain. After the operation he showed signs of consciousness, but his recovery is despaired of.

New gold placers in the vicinity of Stockton are creating some excitement.

The Expedition to Nicaragua.—Col. Walker and expedition have not sailed. Arrangements are on foot, however, to give the Vesta a speedy dispatch.

Another Monster Nugget.—The Sacramento Union says, that on Thursday, Messrs. G. Lambert and A. Van Stavoren, found a lump of pure gold on their claim on Kentucky Flat, near to Rough and Ready, which weighs seventy-two ounces and two pennyweights.

Rain.—Five days of nearly incessant rain have given new life to the mining operations in the interior, while its effect upon the agricultural sections of our State has been marked and healthful.

Murder.—One night last week two gamblers, named Woodward and Smith, quarreled about the use of one of the wenches at a dance-house in Auburn. Woodward left, procured a gun, and returning to a window of the house, shot Smith dead. Woodward dropped the gun and made his escape.—Coloma Argus, 28th ult.

From the Sandwich Islands—We are placed in receipt of the Polynesian of the 7th of April, two weeks later than previous advices.

The Legislature was opened on the 7th. The House of Representatives was organized by the election of the Hon. G. M. Robertson, as Speaker, when the House adjourned to the stone church, to hear the King's speech.

The King's speech occupies two columns of the Polynesian. It contains no allusion to "annexation" He says: "I have committed an important mission to the Honorable William L. Lee, Chancellor of the kingdom and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and have accredited him as my Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, from which mission I anticipate important results for the benefit of you all, which will be made known to you hereafter. In the meanwhile, I recommend you to vote such a sum as, in your wisdom, you may deem adequate for the expenses of that mission."

Godey's Lady's Book for May,

FULL of the latest Fashions and interesting reading matter
Bachelors' attentions are particularly invited to this number. They should not fail to read what Miss Bremer says about married men.
Reader, are you a bachelor? If you are, remember marriage is the mother of the world, and preserves kingdoms and fills cities and churches. Celibacy, like the fly in the heart of an apple, dwells in perpetual sweetness, but sits alone, and is confined, and at last dies in singleness; but marriage, like the useful bee, builds a house and gathers sweetness from every flower. Come with me, my bachelor readers, "I have made up my mind to start." If you would be useful, happy, prosperous, and honored, journey toward the land of wedlock, and when circumstances are favorable, take some partner by the hand, enter its precincts, and with an abiding confidence and pure desire, "settle down" in the midst of its springing delights, there to enjoy the sweets and nurse the babies.
